A mom and the minimum wage hike

By Megan Crepeau | REDEYE

Delores Leonard can afford the basics for herself and her kids. But when her daughters needed $10 for a field trip to the Brookfield Zoo, she had to borrow it from a friend.

"I'm a little embarrassed about the fact that I can't come up with $10, because I have a job," says the 29-year-old single mother of two.

Leonard works for $8.90 an hour at a McDonald's in Hyde Park. The first phase of Chicago's minimum wage hike will require that she be paid $10 an hour beginning in July—and the extra few dollars will give her some wiggle room, she said, for small unexpected costs like the field trip.

Her budget right now leaves little room for surprises. The number of hours she works can change week to week, making her paychecks unpredictable; they can be as high as $320 and as low as $118, she said.

Public assistance programs help: She's given $500 in food stamps per month, which she said is enough for groceries. The Section 8 housing program keeps her rent costs to about $77 per month for a house in the South Chicago neighborhood, and Medicaid takes care of medical expenses. Her Personal finance expert Chris Long has one big piece of advice for Delores Leonard for when her wages go up: save, save, save.

"If there's a way that she could take that extra money, stick it in a savings account for those weeks when she's short, this would be a way for her to build up some cash reserves to tide her over during the weeks when her hours are shorter," said Long, a fee-only certified financial planner based in Wicker Park.

A few months ago, Leonard began depositing her paychecks directly into a checking account rather than using check cashing services—a very smart move, in Long's view.

The next step would be to start a savings account and try to automatically deposit a few dollars from every paycheck, he said, and every little bit will help.

"It's going to be very slow," he said. "[But] it really builds up after a while, even though it doesn't look like anything's happening in the beginning."

Long also said Leonard should find a checking account that won't charge her fees—her current account costs $5 a month, she said. —M.C.

mother and brother look after the girls when she can't, and she shops around for affordable veterinary care for her pets.

Leonard hopes to start saving the extra money she gets once the $10 wage kicks in, and maybe better afford things like the occasional pizza night for her daughters.

But it's hard to predict how much extra money she will actually get; she hopes she has enough seniority at McDonald's that her hours won't get cut in response to the higher wage. In addition, her housing assistance is based on her income, so she may have to pay more in rent. But overall, Leonard is optimistic.

"I really just want my children to know that I did and am doing as much as I can to keep them happy," she said. "I'm trying to make it so they don't have to struggle in the way I did."

FOLLOW ALONG

This is the first in an occasional RedEye series on how young Chicagoans manage on minimum wage and what the July 1 hike citywide means to them.

What to know about the minimum wage in Chicago, beyond

» Chicago's minimum wage will bump from $8.25 to $10 on July 1, and then gradually increase to $13 in 2019, after the City Council last year passed an ordinance backed by Mayor Emanuel.

» The new wage will affect about 31 percent of Chicago's workforce, according to a report by Emanuel's minimum wage working group—meaning more than 400,000 Chicagoans will get a raise. That population is disproportionately black and Latino, and their median age is 33, according to the report.

» A nationwide push to raise the minimum wage to $15 an hour has taken hold in cities like Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

» The 9 million jobs lost nationwide during the recession have played a role in keeping wages down around the nation and even the recovery has had limited impact.

» American workers have struggled with flat wages. Average hourly wages in the nation rose just 3 cents in April to $24.87. Wages have risen only 2.2 percent over the past 12 months, roughly the same sluggish pace of the past six years, according to Labor Department figures.

Best Chicago brunch spots for delivering bad news

The Second City
NETWORK

Tim Dunn
» @SecondCity
Netwk

If you've recently turned 30-ish, then you've probably noticed that you spend more time
on two particular activities: dining at Chicago's best upscale brunch restaurants ...
and giving sad,
uncomfortable news to loved ones. I thought I'd share my advice for combining these two very adult activities. Here are four top spots to eat eggs benedict whilst having tense conversations full of loud whispering.

Gather

4539 N. Lincoln Ave.

Located in Lincoln Square, Gather serves up new takes on brunch classics—and is a warm, cozy place to end a cold, hurtful relationship. Make sure to try their Sunday omelet, filled with fresh asparagus and fontina cheese. And because Gather will be full of the hubbub of young families, no one will ever hear you yell, "Why don't you look at me when we have sex?"

Dunlays on Clark

2600 N. Clark St.

I don't have children, but my friends who do say Dunlays on Clark is the best joint for smoked pork hash—and for telling your kids that you ran over their pet turtle. Also, Dunlays' patio is dog-friendly, which allows you to make the valid point that a dog is a real pet, unlike a goddamn turtle.

Weather Mark Tavern

1503 S. Michigan Ave.

If you're brunching in the South Loop, Weather Mark Tavern's endless mimosas will finally give you the courage to tell your wife that you actually haven't seen her favorite movie, "Captain Phillips." You'll feel wave after wave of relief knowing that you didn't have to pay for each mimosa. And that you no longer have to try and identify your spouse's constant "Captain Phillips" quotes.

Lula Café

2537 N. Kedzie Ave.

The patio at Logan Square's Lula Café is the perfect spot to tell your mom that you are on the run from the law for accidentally funding a dog fighting league. Keep mom's horror to a minimum with dishes like the almond brioche french toast, complete with rhubarb compote and sour cream!

Peripheral Neuropathy WARNING!

The most common method your doctor will recommend to treat your neuropathy is with prescription drugs that may temporarily reduce your symptoms. These drugs have names such as Gabapentin, Lyrica, Cymbalta, and Neurontin, and are primarily antidepressant or anti-seizure drugs. These drugs may cause you to feel uncomfortable and have a variety of harmful side effects.

Peripheral neuropathy is a result of damage to the nerves often causing weakness, pain, numbness, tingling, and the most debilitating balance problems.

This damage is commonly caused by a lack of blood flow to the nerves in the hands and feet which causes the nerves to begin to degenerate due to lack of nutrient flow.

As you can see in Figure 1, as the blood vessels that surround the nerves become diseased they shrivel up which causes the nerves to not get the nutrients to continue to survive. When these nerves begin to "die" they cause you to have balance problems, pain, numbness, tingling, burning, and many additional symptoms.

Figure 2: When these very small blood vessels become diseased they begin to shrivel up and the nerves begin to degenerate.

The main problem is that your doctor has told you to just live with the problem or try the drugs which you don't like taking because they make you feel uncomfortable. There is now a facility right here in Chicago that offers you hope without taking those endless drugs with serious side effects. (See the special neuropathy severity examination at the end of this article.)

In order to effectively treat your neuropathy three factors must be determined.

- 1) What is the underlying cause?
- 2) How Much Nerve Damage Has Been Sustained.

NOTE: Once you have sustained 85% nerve loss, there is likely nothing that we can do for you.

- 3) How much treatment will your condition require?

The treatment that is provided by Dr. Ruzila has three main goals:

- 1) Increase blood flow
- 2) Stimulate small fiber nerves
- 3) Decrease brain based pain

The treatment to increase blood flow utilizes a specialized low level light therapy using light emitting diode technology. This technology was originally developed by NASA to assist in increasing blood flow. The low level light therapy is like watering a plant. The light therapy will allow the blood vessels to grow back around the peripheral nerves and provide them with the proper nutrients to heal and repair. It's like adding water to a plant and seeing the roots grow deeper and deeper.

Figure 3: The blood vessels will grow back around the nerves much like a plant's roots grow when watered.

The amount of treatment needed to allow the nerves to fully recover varies from person to person and can only be determined after a detailed neurological and vascular evaluation.

As long as you have not sustained at least 85% nerve damage there is hope!

Dr. Paul Ruzila, D.C. at Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness will do a neuropathy severity examination to determine the extent of the nerve damage for only $35. This neuropathy severity examination will consist of a detailed sensory evaluation, and a detailed analysis of the findings of your neuropathy. Dr. Paul Ruzila D.C. will be offering this neuropathy severity examination from now until Monday, June 22, 2015. Call (312) 212-1150 to make an appointment with Dr. Paul Ruzila D.C. to determine if your peripheral neuropathy can be treated.

Rapper killed after posting video making fun of rival gang

By Jeremy Gornier and Alexandra Chachkevitch | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

A week ago, rapper Shaquon Thomas posted a video making fun of a rival gang while pretending to hold a gun in his hands.

"You don't even know how to shoot,"

Thomas rapped in the video, titled "Shooters."

Early Friday, the 20-year-old Thomas was gunned down about a block from where he recorded that video on the streets of Uptown. It's an area where three street gangs—the Conservative Vice Lords, the Gangster Disciples and the Black P Stones—have been locked in a long-running feud. Thomas was a Gangster Disciple, according to police.

Around 1:35 a.m. Friday, he was with a friend in the 4800 block of North Kenmore Avenue when a gunman walked up and started shooting, authorities said. Thomas was hit twice in the back and taken to Advocate Illinois Masonic Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead at 3:01 a.m.

It was at least the third time someone had tried to kill Thomas in the last year and a half, according to police. The other two times, innocent bystanders died.

EXPRESS LINES

» Kristopher Pitts, 22, of the 1100 block of North Central Park Avenue in Humboldt Park, has been charged with first-degree murder and armed robbery in the fatal shooting of Kevin O'Malley, 25, of Palos Park, in Lakeview Saturday, police said.

» A Berwyn man charged with fatally stabbing another man early Saturday at Simone's Bar, 960 W. 18th St. in Pilsen, told police he did so because the man was talking to his girl, Cook County prosecutors said. Ulises Almaraz, 29, faces a murder charge in the death of 43-year-old Rudy Avina, according to authorities. Almaraz was ordered held without bail Sunday.

» By popular vote, the Lincoln Park Zoo decided on Obu as the name for its baby snow monkey. After a week and 2,197 votes, Obu took 37 percent of the vote, according to an announcement on the zoo's website. TRIBUNE

Riot Fest asking for up to 9 stages

Request outlined in permit application for new Douglas Park home

By Leonor Vivanco | REDEYE

Riot Fest wants to set up as many as nine stages in the southern half of Douglas Park when it hosts the three-day music fest at its new location in September.

Five main stages and four others would be erected on park property south of Ogden Avenue to 19th Street and from Albany Avenue to the west to California Avenue to the east, according to the permit application, which included a preliminary map submitted in recent days by Riot Fest to the Chicago Park District.

Although the preliminary map shows eight stages, Riot Fest answered there would be "9 (5 mainstages)" when specifically asked in the permit application if the event would include the installation of stages and how many. The application was dated May 20.

Last year, the event was held in Humboldt Park, where bands performed on seven stages. Another stage was set up for the one-day interactive panel with Pussy Riot.

This year, Riot Fest said it will unveil its Riot Fest Speaks Stage programmed and designed for interactive panels and another stage for The Rock-a-fire Explosion, the band of robotic animals from the 1980s that played at ShowBiz Pizza Place locations.

RedEye, which has been a media partner of the fest in the past, obtained the special event permit application through a Freedom of Information Act request.

This year's festival is set for Sept. 11-13.

Organizers want to begin setting up for the festival as early as a week ahead from Sept. 4-10 and to tear down their equipment afterward from Sept. 14-16, according to the permit application.

In addition to wanting to use 40 percent of Douglas Park, Riot Fest is asking for street closures for the inner park drive in the southern half of Douglas Park. Citing public transit and safety, Riot Fest would like to close a lane of traffic as well as a parking lane immediately surrounding the venue.

Acts including No Doubt, Snoop Dogg and Modest Mouse announced as part of the Riot Fest lineup earlier this week are expected to attract 55,000 people a day for a total of 165,000, the permit application showed.

Beau Biden, son of VP, dies at 46

1 DOVER, Del. He was the privileged son of a longtime U.S. senator and two-term vice president, yet Joseph R. "Beau" Biden III was no stranger to personal adversity.

When he was only 3, just weeks after his father, Joe Biden, had been elected to the Senate, the younger Biden was seriously injured in a 1972 car crash that killed his mother and infant sister. His father was sworn into office at his hospital bedside.

As a young college student, he was back in the hospital, holding vigil with other family members as Joe Biden underwent surgery for a life-threatening aneurysm.

And after launching his own successful political career, Beau Biden was dogged by health problems. In 2010, he suffered a mild stroke at the age of 41.

On Saturday, Beau Biden died of brain cancer, less than two years after he was diagnosed. He was 46.

Twice elected attorney general, Biden planned to run for Delaware governor in 2016. He made the announcement in an April 2014 email to supporters.

May marked by wild weather

Even for a world getting used to wild weather, May seemed stuck on strange.

Torrential downpours in Texas. A heat wave that has killed more than 1,800 people in India. Record 91-degree readings in Alaska, of all places. A pair of top-of-the-scale typhoons in the Northwest Pacific. And a drought taking hold in the East.

"Mother Nature keeps throwing us crazy stuff," Rutgers University climate scientist Jennifer Francis says. "It's just been one thing after another."

The word "stuck" provides one possible explanation.

Francis and some other meteorologists say the jet stream is in a rut, not moving nasty weather along. The high-speed, constantly shifting river of air 30,000 feet above Earth normally guides storms around the globe, but sometimes splits and comes back together somewhere else.

A stuck jet stream, with a bit of a split, explains the extremes in Texas, India, Alaska and the U.S. East, but not the typhoons, Francis says.

Other possible factors contributing to May's wild weather: the periodic warming of the central Pacific known as El Niño, climate change and natural variability, scientists say.

Texas in May has received a record statewide average of 8 inches of rain. Some parts of the Lone Star State and Oklahoma have gotten more than a foot and a half since May 1.

The heat wave in India is the world's fifth-deadliest since 1900, with reports of the 100-degree-plus heat. And it's a consequence

Parts of Texas were finally beginning to rebuild Sunday after weeks of rain and flooding. AP of the stuck jet stream, according to Francis and Weather Underground meteorology director Jeff Masters.

The stuck jet stream has kept Alaska on bake, with the town of Eagle hitting 91, the earliest Alaska has had a temperature pushing past 90, Masters says.

And on the other end of the country, New York; Boston; Hartford, Conn.; Albany, N.Y.; Providence, R.I.; and Concord, N.H., all have received less than an inch of rain this month and are flirting with setting monthly records for drought, he says.

Former Md. governor enters 2016 race vs. Clinton

3 Former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley entered the Democratic presidential race on Saturday in a longshot challenge to Hillary Rodham Clinton for the 2016 nomination, casting himself as a new generation leader who would rebuild the economy and reform Wall Street.

Anheuser-Busch brewery cans water for flood victims

4 An Anheuser-Busch plant in Georgia has started canning water instead of beer to help flood victims in Texas and Oklahoma. Media outlets reported Friday the Cartersville plant halted beer production to produce 50,000 cans of water to distribute to the flooded areas by the weekend.

Solar plane begins longest leg of record-attempting trip

5 A Swiss pilot of a solar plane on Sunday embarked on the longest leg of the first attempt to fly around the world without fuel. André Borschberg took off from Nanjing, China, at Sunday in the Solar Impulse 2 for a flight across the Pacific Ocean expected to last six days and five nights.

Roll out the welcome mat?

Reports continue to surface that the Bulls are set to hire Fred Hoiberg (above) as their next coach. According to the New York Daily News, the sides are working on a five-year, $25 million deal. Bulls fans just hope this wouldn't be a repeat of the last Iowa State coach the team hired, Tim Floyd, who went 49-190 in Chicago.

2015 STANLEY CUP FINALS four to go

After a solid-but-not-spectacular regular season, the Blackhawks again have shown their mettle in the playoffs. They knocked off Nashville without home-ice advantage, thanks in part to one win in double overtime and another in triple OT. Then they swept Minnesota, earning a lengthy break. Then the Hawks survived a slugfest with Anaheim, capping the series with a convincing road victory in Game 7.

That's the short version of how they got themselves only four wins from their third Stanley Cup in six seasons. Here you'll find a visually stimulating display of their progress, depicting the accomplishments of their five regular-season scoring leaders and the goaltenders who have seen action. All of which should whet your appetite for when the puck drops for Game 1 on Wednesday in Tampa Bay.

Royal Blood talks about its unique sound, its bone-rattling songs and the Spice Girls*By Matt Pals | REDEYE

It's a cliché, but it's also true: There just aren't a lot of great rock bands out there anymore.

So it was nothing short of spectacular to see English duo Royal Blood absolutely destroy its Lolla 2014 slot, a sign of big things to come. The group's full-length, self-titled debut was one of last year's best releases, taking over the pair's homeland with authority not seen since Arctic Monkeys and earning big-name fans in the U.S. including Dave Grohl, who tapped Royal Blood to open several Foo Fighters dates in 2015.

Singer Mike Kerr (who plays bass like a lead guitar and has family in Naperville), 24, and drummer Ben Thatcher, 27, sat down with RedEye in early December before a show at the House of Blues to talk about the Spice Girls. Well, about rock and inspiration and stuff too, but also the Spice Girls.

Watch video from this interview, including Royal Blood taking a royal quiz, at redeye-chicago.com/royalblood.

Some have written about the way you guys are thoughtful and soft-spoken offstage, and while a lot of thought goes into the music, you're not quite as restrained on stage. Is there a different aspect of your personality that comes through the music while performing?

Mike Kerr: We just love it so much. I guess when we play it's quite physically demanding music anyway, so it's the nature of the beast really. We get so excited when we do it, we can't help but act that way.

What do you mean by physically demanding?

Ben Thatcher: It's quite energetic.

MK: It's a very primal way of playing music. It's just the two of us, and Ben's hitting everything as hard as he can and I'm trying to match that energy level. We're constantly just trying to keep the dynamic between the two of us as crazy as possible really.

As a result of that, do people expect something crazy out of you when they meet you after a show?

MK: Well, they don't know who we are. They only see us when we're playing. I think that environment is different and that circumstance, you can act in an unusual way and you can be unusual because—

BT: —you're performing.

MK: It's like if you're going to meet a famous heavyweight boxing champion, he's not going to be like he is in the ring when you meet him. I hope not anyway. Perhaps there are expectations that we'll be the same, but you can't really blame people. They don't know how polite we are in person.

So while trying to play as hard as you can, do you break more sticks and strings than other bands? What's the collateral damage of that approach to playing?

MK: Ben breaks a lot of his drumsticks on purpose sometimes, just in between songs. Over his head, over his leg.

BT: We play hard—

MK: —so sometimes things fall over, and it's part of—

BT: —the live show. That's why it's so exciting. You never know what's going to happen on stage.

Is there little need for rehearsal because everything on the record can be created live?

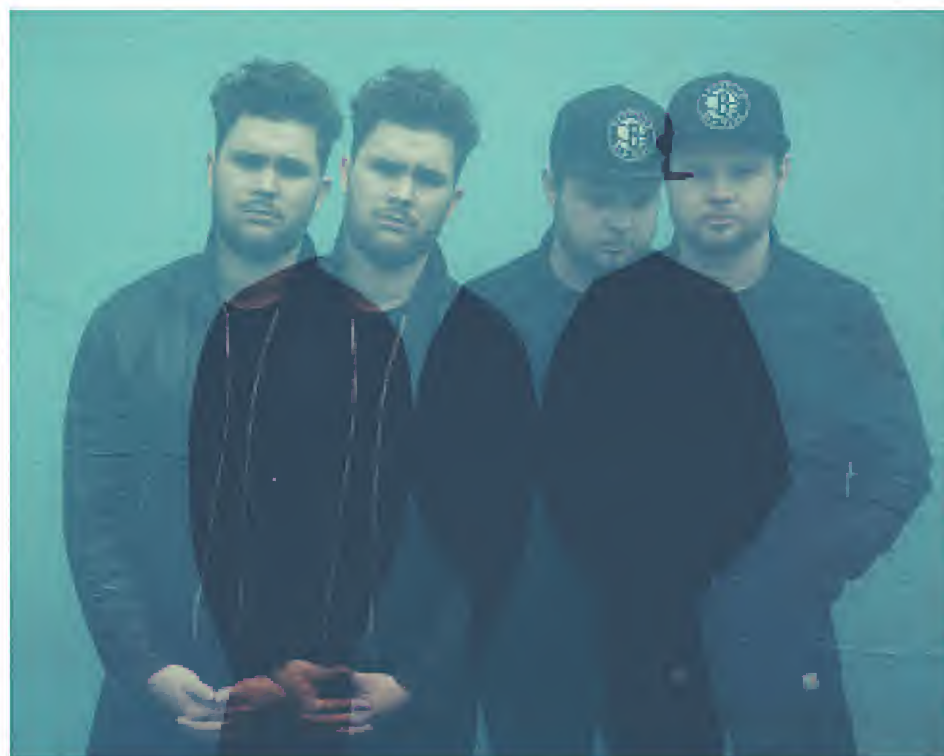

MK: By nature we're rehearsing anyway because we're constantly writing and playing together, and by the time we've toured so much this year we didn't have time to rehearse. But we're playing every day. I think that's the best way of getting better at anything is doing it for real. You can't really rehearse the live show. It's just totally different. It's like training for war and then actually being in the war. It's just different. You kind of remember your training, but it's not always very helpful.

Mike, for good reason a lot of people talk about the sound you're able to get out of the bass. Do you remember the first reaction when you created the sound and invited friends over—did it blow their minds?

MK: It was kind of, "Oh, cool." "Oh, nice one." I don't think there's anything particularly clever about making a big, loud noise. I'm certainly not the first person to do that. I think the real thing that really motivated us and that we really got buzzed about was making it work with two people really. And writing tunes that we liked. With just the two of us. The concept of having a big sound got old quickly.

There is something unique about having something proprietary about your band, a secret recipe in the sound. I don't know if you can name many other bands that have something that people don't know how they do it.

MK: Really all of my favorite guitarists have kept what they do close to their chests. I wouldn't say what I do is a secret. It's kind of in front of you anyway. You can see that I use three amps; you can see I'm playing the bass. It's pretty evident to most people that I'm using distortion and [pedals]. It's not really very complicated. But there are elements of it that I want to remain mine, so I'm not going to reveal every single detail of how I do it. ... I'm not the only one.

It seems you've gotten ideas for songs out of jam sessions. Can you think of the longest you've ever jammed together or why that environment leads to material?

MK: I think that's the only environment for us that really leads to making a riff or a melody, something special. I think as much as we sometimes write things on our own, when you're together you're setting things in stone a bit more.

BT: Merging.

MK: To us, playing live is the premise of the band. We're always going to write ... live.

Does being in an epic jam session help?

MK: We like to keep things pretty short really. I don't recall any time where we've jammed for hours and been like, "Whoa, man, that was crazy!" Particularly when we're writing, we go in hard and fast and like to get things done. I think something we've learned over the period of making that record was keep things moving quickly and try not to over-think things. We like to keep it simple, and I think sometimes when you have too much time to play around you kind of miss the point.

If you could pick one narrative to stop answering questions about, would it be being a rock duo or being the so-called saviors of the genre?

BT: That's a good one.

MK: Both have been asked frequently. But these are claims that certainly were not made by ourselves. That's someone else's mess to clean up I think.

BT: If you can not ask us either of those questions ...

MK: It's easier to not answer the question than [get people to] stop asking it.

I definitely was not going to ask.

MK: Though you've tricked us, and we've ended up kind of answering a similar question. So that's great journalism.

What was going through your head as Jimmy Page walked up to you, before you got to talk to him?

MK: Trying to figure out if he was John Paul Jones or Jimmy ... no, I remember just thinking "[Bleep], I've got to play in front of him" and being very nervous because we admire him.

BT: I remember thinking, "[Bleep], Mike's gotta play in front of him."

MK: Every time there was a bit of a solo coming up I would just be like, "Oh, God, this is [bleeped]-up pressure."

Could you see him while you were playing?

MK: Yeah. The nerves settled a bit because I saw his head boppin' and getting into it, and he seemed to be enjoying it. Once I saw that, my [nerves] dropped a bit, and it was going to be OK. He was super nice afterwards.

How did it come about with you opening for Foo Fighters shows? Did Dave Grohl call you up?

MK: He didn't phone, unfortunately. That would have been funny wouldn't it. I guess he decides—he handpicks who he wants to come on the road with him. Yeah, we'd heard—

BT: —it's between us and Snow Patrol.

MK: Yeah, and we're just so [bleeping] glad it was us and not Snow Patrol.

I think they made the right choice.

MK: I think everyone is glad about that.

BT: Snow Patrol got some hits, haven't they? Dave can see that. He's a wise man.

MK: He gave us young'uns a shot.

Better luck next time, Snow Patrol?

MK: Sno Patrol. It's Snow joke.

Mike, you talked about Jeff Buckley being one of your influences. People might not notice that from the record. Have you ever tried to get your voice to that place?

MK: I try every day. I'm aiming high, but I'm failing miserably. I'd love to have his voice, but I don't.

Can you give an idea of what that's like when you try to mimic him?

MK: I sound like a really [bleep] Jeff Buckley.

BT: Really, really [bleep].

MK: I'd have to tell you who I'm trying to be.

Ben, is there a drumming counterpart you try to be like?

MK: Me probably.

BT: Mike inspires my drumming. He used to have a kit actually.

MK: I like to inspire Ben by showing him not what to do but what to be. Because he goes, "I would never play like that." And then he'll play not how I'm doing it.

BT: ... Basically Mike plays and says, "Listen to this, and just play the [bleep] version," and that's what I try and do.

Ben, you talked about loving Spice Girls in your past.

Ben: Who doesn't?

I feel like everyone does.

BT: Who's your favorite Spice Girl?

That's a hard question. Growing up it was probably Geri [Halliwell].

BT: That's mine. Who was yours?

MK: Um, I liked Emma Bunton. Especially when she went into the solo career.

BT: I think Geri's solo stuff was the strongest [in terms of songwriting].

MK: She pulled some tunes out of the bag.

Is there a Spice Girls song you most often sing to yourself?

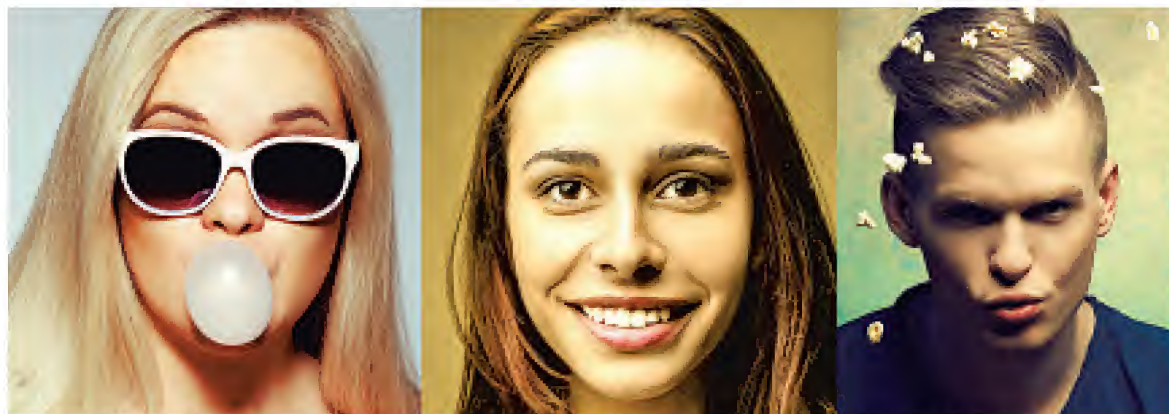

BT: "2 Become 1."

MK: Yeah, every night just on the cusp of falling asleep I'm singing it.

BT: That's how really me and Mike come together.

MK: That song. Do you ever feel like a song was written about you?

MONTHLY
GUIDE

30 SHOWS NOT TO MISS IN JUNE

By Andy Downing | FOR REDEYE

Get ready to hust out the sunscreen. Beginning in June, the action finally shifts outdoors, and during the next few weeks notable concerts are scheduled to take place at Millennium Park's Pritzker Pavilion (Hozier), FirstMerit Bank Pavilion (Robert Plant), Montrose Beach (Mumford & Sons) and even Soldier Field (the EDM-driven Spring Awakening Fest). Here are the month's 30 best shows.

Grieves

June 3 at Lincoln Hall

On Grieves' most recent album, "Winter and the Wolves," the Seattle-based rapper favors earnest, autobiographical verses married to bright beats that cut the gloom like sun through heavy Pacific Northwest clouds.

Royal Blood

June 3 at Metro

The British duo's self-titled debut builds around mammoth, supercharged rock tunes far bigger sounding than its meager headcount would have anyone believe.

Will Butler

June 4 and 5 at Lincoln Hall

On his solo debut, "Policy," the Arcade Fire side player proves himself a more-than-capable frontman, turning out a set heavy on rock tunes that crackle with life.

Miranda Lambert

June 6 at Soldier Field

On Lambert's latest album, "Platinum," the country star, who once got revenge on a cheating ex by burning down his house (in song, anyway), loosens up and laughs away life's various indignities.

Shabazz Palaces

June 7 at The Shrine

Ishmael Butler, who rhymes under the nom-de-rap Palaceer Lazaro, joins producer Tendai Maraire to form the creative center of the experimental hip-hop crew, which packs its latest album, "Lese Majesty," with seven self-described astral suites.

My Morning Jacket

June 9-11 at Chicago Theatre

The recently released "The Waterfall" finds the solo-loving Louisville rockers shifting between trippy, folk-flecked ballads and psychedelic guitar jams.

Hozier

June 10 at Pritzker Pavilion

The Irish "Take Me to Church" balladeer should make Pritzker's outdoor setting feel like the Celtic countryside for an evening.

Robert Plant & the Sensational Space Shifters

June 10 at FirstMerit Bank Pavilion

The shamanistic Led Zeppelin frontman has remained a musical wanderer, chasing down threads of delta blues, country-folk and mind-expanding rock.

Bahamas

June 11 at Metro

Canadian-born singer-songwriter Alie Jurvanen, who records and performs under the name Bahamas, ensconces himself in pretty, melancholic pop songs born of heartbreak and romantic failing.

Wire with St. Vincent

June 12 at Thalia Hall

This one-off collaboration—part of the Drill: Chicago festival—finds the post-punk legends teaming with St. Vincent for an expanded version of the Wire song "Drill."

Spring Awakening

June 12-14 at Soldier Field

The three-night electronic festival, headlined by the likes of Zedd and Diplo, should cram Soldier Field with more big hits and booming, crunchy sounds than an entire season of Bears football.

Jungle

June 13 at Concord Music Hall

The London synth duo specializes in dance tunes nearly as lush as its name would suggest.

King Gizzard & The Lizard Wizard

June 13 at Subterranean

The Aussie psych-rock collective specializes in hazy psych-rock as out there as its name, which sounds like it could have been lifted from the title of a long-lost children's book.

Lower Dens

June 15 at Empty Bottle

The experimental Baltimore crew delves deeper into synth-pop on its dark, danceable sophomore album, "Escape From Evil."

Imagine Dragons

June 15 at Allstate Arena

Dragons, one imagines, would be massive creatures, and the band does its mythological namesake proud, turning out chest-pounding rock anthems engineered for the arena setting.

JEFF the Brotherhood

June 17 at Double Door

The Tennessee scuzz-rock duo blasts its way through its latest album, "Wasted on the Dream."

Mumford & Sons

June 17 at Montrose Beach

The old-timey crew moves into the modern era with "Wilder Mind," setting aside throwback folk in favor of Coldplay-esque rock.

Geto Boys

June 18 at Thalia Hall

Southern rap pioneers Scarface, Bushwick Bill and Willie D bring the reunited Houston trio to town for a rare concert.

MONO

June 18 at Bottom Lounge

The Japanese post-rock crew arrives here in support of a pair of new albums, the lush and orchestral "The Last Dawn" and the comparatively pared-down "Rays of Darkness," which strips down the music to its skeletal foundation.

"Change Is Everything," the first single off the new Son Lux album "Bones," hints at the project's shape-shifting, forward-looking approach.

Lil Wayne

June 20 at United Center

The title of the gravelly New Orleans rapper's latest mixtape, "Sorry 4 the Wait 2," could double as an apology to concertgoers, as he has a habit of appearing onstage long after the scheduled start time.

Mikal Cronin

June 20 at Subterranean

"MCIII," the third album from the San Francisco singer-songwriter, finds Cronin fleshing out his fuzzy pop-rock sound, incorporating everything from string sections to the tzouras, a Greek stringed instrument.

Jacco Gardner

June 20 at Beat Kitchen

The Netherlands-born baroque-pop singer arrives here in support of his latest, "Hypnophobia."

U2

June 24, 25, 28, 29 at United Center

It's been a difficult year for the iconic Irish rock crew between Bono's bike accident, which he still hasn't fully recovered from, and the botched release of "Songs of Innocence," which generated strong backlash after its free release. Still, early reports on this tour suggest the band is operating at a peak.

Coliseum

June 26 at Subterranean

While the Louisville hardcore trio has a name that calls to mind large outdoor venues, its sound is more reminiscent of cramped, sweaty house shows.

'Weird Al' Yankovic

June 27 at Chicago Theatre

After more than 30 years crafting loving pop-rock parodies, Weird Al hit a new career

HOROSCOPES

BY TAROT.COM

Gemini May 21-June 21
Experiment with innovative ways today to interact with someone you want to know better. Being open to change demonstrates your ability to play well with others. A light touch and a healthy sense of humor puts everyone at ease.

Cancer June 22-July 22
You're yearning to break free from old patterns. Take tentative steps on your new journey until you become comfortable talking about your goals. There's no reason to wait for a better time; create a plan and work your magic.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22
You can't decide whether you are excited or scared about your future. The tide is shifting. Throwing caution to the wind might be the necessary catalyst that makes your dreams come alive.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22
You want to pursue a few enticing opportunities at work that are knocking at your door. Proceed with caution and avoid shortcuts. Manage your resources wisely and you will reach your goals faster than you expect.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
Your enthusiasm encourages you to start a new project today before you think about what your commitment really means. Take the time to map out your strategy prior to jumping headfirst into your next venture.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21
You have lofty ideas about the many things you can do today, but you might lack follow-through. Learn how to set sensible goals so you can establish a successful track record and apply a practical twist to your imaginative ideas.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21
You may feel anxious if there are one-too-many options today, but settle down by taking a few deep breaths. It's more crucial to maintain your emotional balance now than to seize every exciting opportunity that comes your way.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19
You may feel like a closet optimist today, especially if you think you're more successful when your practical nature overshadows your ambitions. Let your authentic self shine through, even if you're worried that others won't approve. Believing in your dreams is your secret to success.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18
Socializing with your co-workers trumps doing your work today, but there's a serious side to hanging with peers. Don't expend too much energy trying to impress anyone. It's the sweet, heart-centered relationships that add the most meaning to your life.

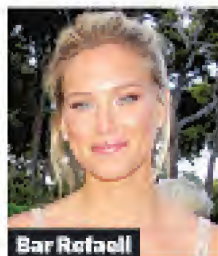

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
It's perfectly natural for you to dream about your future. Reassess the ways you can build on the solid foundation you've created, rather than heading off in a whole new direction. Don't worry about how much you actually accomplish today; real progress will still require some time to manifest.

Aries March 21-April 19
Your restlessness could get the best of you today, but focus your attention on work and the conversations occurring in the moment. Your ability to react quickly to new developments now increases your chances for success.

Taurus April 20-May 20
A co-worker may offer their assistance, but you're hesitant to overstep the established boundaries of your relationship. But don't quit yet; a sudden shift in your attitude allows you to relax and broach the subject with confidence.

THE DIGIT// $53.2 MILLION

Talk about an Earth-shaking opening weekend. Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson's disaster pic "San Andreas" rattled the box office this weekend with a $53.2 million debut, also bringing in $60 million internationally, thr.com reports. Star-studded "Aloha," wasn't nearly as powerful, debuting at only $10 million, the lowest opening of summer for a major studio release. Bradley Cooper might make audiences go weak at the knees but The Rock apparently knocks them right over.

Prom King

Jaden Smith is officially a prom pro. Over the weekend, the 16-year-old actor attended his second prom in a month, this time with "Hunger Games" actress Amandla Stenberg as his date. Earlier in May, Smith hit up another high school dance dressed as a superhero, ew.com reports. We're really hoping parents Will and Jada took awkward pictures of the pair beforehand and helped Jaden nervously pin on his boutonniere.

THE QUOTE

"come to think of it, i did press "pool" but i thought it was a fun summer reference. like how @google changes fonts to celebrate holidays. ... noone is talking. this silence is the only thing more awkward than if all of us were talking. #ubercarpool ... if I'm not home in 10 minutes pls call the police and tell them i was last seen in a honda accord with 2 males mutes."

—Kristen Bell, live-tweeting her Thursday Uber ride for which she accidentally ordered a carpool instead of a private trip, The Huffington Post reports Saved by the Court?

Will the lockers he got stuffed into back at Bayside High be the only time Screech spends locked up? According to A.V. Club, it's still unclear. "Saved By the Bell" actor Dustin Diamond has been convicted on charges of disorderly conduct and carrying a concealed weapon by a Wisconsin court relating to a Christmas Day bar stabbing last year, but he was acquitted of reckless endangerment. Diamond still faces up to nine months behind bars and we're pretty sure neither Zack "Preppy" Morris nor pep pills can get him out of this one.

THE DIGIT// 30 MINUTES

He could be your hero, baby, but nobody was there to rescue Enrique Iglesias when he tried to grab a drone flying near the stage during a Saturday night concert in Tijuana, Mexico, the Associated Press reports. The singer seriously sliced his fingers, but continued performing for 30 minutes, bloody hand and shirt and all. An ambulance reportedly later met Iglesias at the airport.
